Notes from the Chair

Summers' End

I hope that everyone has had a wonderful summer even with the rather damp August that we have unfortunately had. I would like to thank Lynn, Chalce and all of the North Aston Gardening Club for another fantastic Flower & Produce Show at the weekend ... what a green fingered lot we are!

Village Forum

Last Thursday we held the Village Forum down in the Bakery, and thank you to all that came. However, if you were unable to come please take a look at the Minutes published here in the News. Lots was discussed, including a talk from Guy Middleton about Fibre Broadband for the village. The next Village Forum will be held in the Bakery on the 14th November.

Harvest

And finally, with autumn slowly creeping in, I'd like to remind everyone that the Harvest Supper will be on the 6th October this year. Please see the advert on page 7.

You can telephone Lucinda on 340588 or email: chair@north-aston.co.uk

North Aston Discussion Group

Meetings are held on the first Thursday of every second month, and September's gathering will take place on Thursday 5th. The Group has moved out of the Bakery and is piloting holding the evening in homes on a rotating basis, with the first to be held at Les and Pat Parry's home at Juniper House, The Green. The topic this month is "Are we a Classless Society?"

The Group is intended to be an opportunity for a relaxed get-together, more or less focused on a topic which stimulates interesting discussion. If you would like to be on a mailing list alerting you to meetings, email furniturechat@gmail.com. For further information, call Tony Buxton or Annie Savage on 347767. Everyone is welcome.

North Aston Nature Notes

With Stephen Rees

Hello to all! It turned out flipping hot towards the end of August. One day we had torrential rain, the next it was as hot as Egypt. I don't know ... it's been a strange summer.

Earlier in the month we had a shrub covered in the yellow and black caterpillars of the Cinnabar moth, and they stayed on it until it was completely stripped of every bit of foliage. Then they disappeared, just as fast as they came. (The caterpillars feed on Groundsel, but prefer Ragwort, and they've been introduced in some areas to control the toxic weed. This makes the caterpillars poisonous as well, and their bright colours warn predators that they're not a tasty morsel. The distinctive day-time-flying moth, with its red and black wings, is also toxic.)

Our spots for us last month were pretty normal and unexciting, and included skeins of Geese going over in the mornings, and then back again, honking away in the middle of the night. We saw a Sparrow Hawk in the garden chasing ... Sparrows, and spotted Magpies taking rides on the backs of the sheep below us. It always looks funny, but they're picking ticks and maggots off the sheep for a quick snack.

My favourite was a Weasel running towards me down the side of a track. I hadn't seen one in ages and always forget how small they are.

There have been lots of dead young Foxes on the road this past month. These will be last year's young that have been kicked out to make way for this year's cubs to grow. We have been seeing a lot of the adult Foxes just lately as well. They are out looking for food to feed their cubs, and are quite brave about it; visiting our chicken run every single night in the hope that one has flown out.

We slept down the garden in our summer house a lot last month, but the mornings are starting to get misty and cool, and there is getting a real autumnal feel already. The Blackberries are ripening well and the Hawthorn berries are changing from green to red.

Two funny things to report this month: We were sat having supper one Sunday night when, all of a sudden, a Sparrow flew straight into our kitchen and sat on the window sill. Then, when Jimmy stood up, it got up and flew right through the house, into our bedroom, and out of the window. Cheeky blighter!

The other story is also about Sparrows. Did you know that a female Hedge Sparrow demands sex up to 200 times a day? She has two husbands on the go all the time, and will even commit adultery on those two poor worn-out boys!

One afternoon, while sitting down the bottom of the garden, I was starting to feel like Robert the Bruce. He was hiding in a cave from the good old English noblemen, and was watching a spider climbing, falling and climbing again, as it struggled to create a web. That's when he decided he wouldn't give up either. So, I'm sat there and this big spider is climbing up its long thin web and falling back down, climbing up again, and again ... and again. It did this for half-an-hour and finally got to the tree, only to fall down about a foot, and hang there. Next second, a Pied Wagtail flew in, grabbed it, and flew off. Life can be cruel, can't it?

And that's about it. A short one this month and, as I write, it's nearly gin o'clock. Wifey is already sat down the bottom, so I'd better go and wake her up and pour one for her before I get shouted at ... only joking dear!

Oh, just remembered - we had the pleasure of the company of a Tawny Owl last night, calling away. That was a lovely sound to end the month.

That's it then all the best,
Steve, Wendy & Penny

On Call Firefighting!

The whole process of becoming a Firefighter ...

In the depths of last winter, I turned up one Drill Night to have a chat with Deddington watch manager Chris Fenemore about what it took to become an “on call” firefighter. Undeterred, I navigated the OCC website and eventually found that hidden gem of an application form. I quickly fired this off and waited. I had been warned that it might not be the speediest of processes, and over the coming months, I completed, and passed, a series of verbal and numeric psycho symmetric online tests, fitness tests, interviews and a full medical, together with an Assessment Day at Didcot.

That was the first time I met the other Oxfordshire hopefuls: a motley crew of 20- to 50-somethings, all a little nervous and totalling 24. We were split into four groups and shoehorned into training kit. Imagine doing intense physical exercise in a Tog 15 duvet and you'll get close!

Exercises were against the clock and included: a ladder climb and leg lock, body drag, confined space crawl (in dummy breathing apparatus), ladder lift, hand strength tests, equipment assembly and disassembly, and the all-important ‘equipment carry’. I had to do the crawl test again as I failed to grasp the fact that it was against the clock and rather enjoyed it too much! Two people dropped out, but the rest thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Further interviews and yet more tests followed, and all were passed.

Back to Kidlington with vital documents meant we were getting a little closer to our goal. In late April, we met again to receive our kit ... and to try everything on and make sure it all fitted. The kit box was as big as the car boot it had to fit into!

May loomed and Theory Induction Day. All smartly dressed in our navy blue uniforms, we were down to 20. We were given dates for our basic FF course (3 pre-course Induction Evenings and a two-week intensive training course) due at Didcot. The joys of commuting down the A34 sprang to mind but, fortunately, training for those in the northern half of the county was moved to Eynsham – a mere 40 minute drive.

I was now a signed-up member of Oxfordshire Fire and Rescue, with the first pre-course evening showing us to be a group of 10 from Deddington, Hooky, Chippy, Bicester, Bampton, Woodstock and Charlbury. The course itself covered hoses, pumps, ladders, water rescue, road traffic collisions, knots and lines. The drill yard was a serious area, and we'd lost three more by the time our two-week course started. Day 1, known as ‘Hellish Monday’, was the dreaded hose-rolling, setting out and making up six 25m lengths of hose in 8 minutes. Was it pure purgatory? No! It was approached in a enjoyable and relaxed manner, meaning we all survived and didn't melt into jelly whilst cocooned in our PPE!

We became the magnificent se7en, gelled fantastically, and had a ball. At times morale crashed through the floor, but we brought ourselves back up and carried on. The water rescue day was a highlight – full dry suits, wading the Windrush, rescuing our instructors, manually inflating life jackets whilst swimming and shooting down a sluice run flat on your back. After weeks of hard graft and fabulous lunches, a total of 17 headed for Didcot to be enrolled as Firefighters by Oxfordshire's Chief Fire Officer, Simon Furlonger. The magnificent se7en of Tash, Chris, Lee, Tony, Lewis, Arnie and me, James, were Mr or Miss no longer!

James Greenwood

(James has since attended several emergencies, and is now a regular ‘on call’ firefighter in Deddington. Congratulations!)

North Aston Village Forum

Thursday 29th August 2019 ~ The Minutes

Officers present: Chair: Lucinda Fuoco (LF), Treasurer: Sue Hatzigeorgiou (SH), Secretary: Annie Savage (AS)

Those present: Trudy Busby (TB), Clive Busby (CB), Jane Durnin (JD), Marcus Potts (MP), Mark Stay (MS), James Taylor (JT1), Mary Healy (MH), Jeremy Taylor (JT), David Hanna (DH), Robert Hite (RH), Kyle Hite (KH), Tuck Hatzigeorgiou (TH), and Guy Middleton from Spirit Public Sector.

Village Forum

LF welcomed everyone to the Meeting. Standing Item: No declarations of interest made.

1. Minutes of Last Meeting

Matters arising: LF reviewed items outstanding from previous Meetings and the following points were noted:

Generator: clarity to be sought from Bev Rees regarding the position on functionality/servicing requirements of the generator.

Speed Monitor Batteries: CB confirmed that he has purchased a battery for the lower speed monitor and is testing it prior to buying more for the upper monitor. He has sourced cheaper batteries than the European ones previously thought necessary.

Update on position regarding speeding from TVP: Although Les Parry was not present, CB confirmed that despite chasing TVP, Les had not received a response to his letters.

Map of the Village for the noticeboard – MP confirmed this was close to completion.

2. Village Fête

The Fête was discussed and SH ran through the Accounts. Income and profit were very close to last year's figure. The following points were noted for discussion around Fête planning for 2020:

1) Suggestion of a 1:00 pm start time so that more people might be encouraged to take lunch at the Fête.

2) Improvements to the entry to be made, as people were coming in before stallholders were ready. A number of visitors came under the barrier, avoiding the entry fee. This was confirmed by the discrepancy between the number of programmes issued and gate takings.

3) Some of the catering provision to be sited at the far end of the games in order that people move around more.

4) The "sweet lady" could not come this year but we will contact her earlier to ensure she is booked for 2020.

5) Bric-a-Brac. The quality of donations was very variable with much of the stock impossible to sell and MS took the left-over items to Sobell House who rejected them. It was agreed that MP and Franca run the stall as they would at an antiques fair, paying for a pitch and sharing profits. Only donations of genuine antiques will be accepted.

6) Japanese students have confirmed they would like to attend with 150 students. As traffic co-ordination with three coaches was a problem, they will be asked to enter the Fête on a single-coach basis to alleviate. It was noted that a number of the students had been wearing face masks and MP clarified this was a consideration to prevent those with colds or infections from spreading illness.

7) SH acknowledged that Kyle's tombola had been very successful and the meeting showed its appreciation.

8) Date of 2020 Fête agreed: Saturday 11th July.

9) LF agreed to book Yarnton Brass Band, sweet lady and Pollocks for next year.

10) LF recommended one person to be responsible for co-ordinating the Fête, as communication had been a problem. All arrangements to be managed via a single route to avoid confusion and double bookings.

3. Village Constitution

No comments had been received in response to the constitution consultation. It was proposed we adopt. MP proposed. CB seconded. Unanimously approved.

4. Accounts

SH presented a summary of income and expenditure.

5. Mid-Cherwell Neighbourhood Plan

Copies of the final report were made available and are in The Bakery.

6. District Heating and Kerbing

James confirmed the project will be going ahead but as the route of the trenching has changed, it will no longer be possible to tie it in with the kerbing of the Green.

MP will confirm with OCC that the permission previously granted remains effective and that he and Niel Nicholson will continue to source quotations for the work.

7. Speeding

RH confirmed he will contact the Community Police Officer to arrange further training sessions for the Speed Monitor. Further details will be advised.

8. Community Pub

LF opened a discussion about the lack of suitable venues for people in the village to meet socially, as she feels the community could be strengthened by increased contact. She had been in discussion with MH around the possible use of the Bakery on a regular basis and to clarify the position with regard to hiring the space. Although the Bakery does not belong to the village and as such is not a public building, MH clarified it is available to hire but each event would need to be considered. In order to make the property cover its costs, it is now being let out on Airbnb and it would be unacceptable to guests to have a social gathering in the communal area of the house they were renting.

Various views were expressed about the many years spent campaigning for the village hall, which was ultimately thwarted, and the appetite for re-investigating that was low. LF expressed her sadness that the village does not have a social space to improve community cohesion and we are always in the position of having to borrow from commercial organisations who, whilst generous, obviously have to place their own interests first, and so the village loses out.

9. Harvest Lunch

The date of the Harvest Festival is Sunday 6th October. CB will check with Niel and Liz that it would be convenient to use the Park Barn. MH confirmed she was happy to co-ordinate and asked for volunteers on Friday for the preparation

10. Broadband

Guy Middleton from Spirit Public Sector gave a presentation on the potential for applying for funding for "full fibre broadband to the property", which involves the replacement of the copper telephone wires with glass fibre, thus enabling massive improvement in the performance of the Internet by way of speed of data transfer, future-proofing, and the reduction in the cut out of the service which copper wiring brings.

The Government has just brought forward its target for achieving full fibre throughout the UK to 2025 and, consequently, is willing to fund a significant amount towards the cost of installing the infrastructure via a voucher scheme. The installer makes an assessment of the cost to provide for the whole village and initial estimates from Openreach are around £80,000. Guy estimates this could possibly be reduced to around £55,000 if the trench-work was to be tied in with the proposed District Heating System. The vouchers for commercial ventures are significantly higher than the funding available to householders and various conditions apply. There could be very significant benefits to individuals of full fibre, depending on the use of IT/TV etc within the home, and within the next five years it is estimated that all internet provision will require full fibre. It may also mean that the overhead wiring in the village could be removed and underground cabling introduced, thus improving the landscape.

Guy is proposing to assist the village to assess what chances we have of funding for the provision of full fibre and MP agreed to co-ordinate further investigations via completion of the questionnaire distributed last month. If people are keen to move to the new fibre network, they will need to apply for a voucher which Guy estimates will involve an additional cost (by the internet service provider) of around £100 per annum as a commitment to the provider for full fibre broadband must be made for a year. After that, it would be possible to revert to the older, slower service but as prices of internet and telephone provision are continually changing, the chances are the cost benefit of doing so will have gone.

11. Any Other Business:

Discussion Group: It had been agreed at the last meeting that the Discussion Group will be held on the first Thursday of every other month, and the venues will rotate around homes rather than in The Bakery. There is a meeting on Thursday 5th September at 7.30 to be held at Les and Pat Parry's home, Juniper House, The Green. For further information, call Tony Buxton or Annie Savage on 347767. Everyone is welcome.

Salt: OCC has sent details of the salt scheme for winter road safety, but it was agreed this was not required.

Electric Blanket Testing: Full details to be published in NA News.

Mowing: Clive asked if this could be discussed at the next Meeting, as Hal and Clive have cut the Green on a number of occasions. SH asked him to bring an invoice for approval.

Tug of War: MS requested reimbursement of £37.50 for the cost of half the tug of war rope, the cost being shared with Duns Tew. Approval proposed by TB. Seconded by TH.

Aunt Sally: This is becoming a regular event on The Green. Stephen Rees asked if consideration could be given to purchasing a proper Aunt Sally backdrop. Estimated cost is around £300. The meeting agreed this was a good idea and MP will ask Stephen to obtain a firm estimate.

Piano: James asked if the piano in The Bakery, which belongs to the village, could be tuned. Cost is approximately £30. JT proposed. MS seconded.

12. Next Meeting

The date for the next Village Forum was set as Thursday November 14th at 7.30 pm.

Security Advice from TVP

A brief round-up of recent security advice ...

Offensive 'Final Warning' Emails

Anyone with an email account will probably have received one of these offensive messages by now. Known as "sexortion" emails, they come from an "Anonymous Hacker", or perhaps "N1ghTim3r", or something else equally unintelligible. The essence of the message is that the 'hacker' has installed software on your computer that has enabled him to take control of your computer using a 'remote desktop', accessing files stored on your hard drive or, through the webcam, making personal and incriminating video recordings.

The text can be very explicit, and very offensive, and may include your name, company references, or a number of other identifiers intended to make you think that he knows something about you. He will then demand payment, usually in digital currencies, to secure the deletion of the files, with the threat that failure to respond to his blackmail will result in their publication on-line or, perhaps, distribution to your own friends and family. Needless to say, it's a scam ...

There are various give-aways. The same email will be sent to women as well as men. If the hacker truly had video evidence, surely he'd be able to tell the difference? The email may also be received by users who don't actually have a webcam!

RATs, short for Remote Access Trojans, do exist, and what the hacker suggests he's done is, in theory, possible, but it's so enormously unlikely. Yes, they quote details that seem to infer they know something about you, but this is easily available. For example: they include one of your passwords.

Often it's old, but it is (or was) genuinely yours, but while this may seem scary, don't panic. Stolen passwords come from data breaches, where your data was lost by someone else. The crooks didn't steal the password directly from you, they purchased it on the 'dark web'. The crooks may include your phone number. Once again, they can find this through on-line listings and directories, often paired up with an email address. This kind of data hasn't been lifted directly from your computer. It may even appear as if the email has come from your own account, except it hasn't. The name that shows up in the "From:" field is actually part of the email itself, and the hacker can enter any name they choose ... even yours.

What do you do? Nothing! Just delete the email and forget (if you can!) that you ever saw it. Never reply, and certainly don't pay up. If the crooks really did have the 'evidence' they claim, they'd include a still image or a link to prove it ... but they don't. They just threaten with vague and unconvincing evidence.

Stolen Numbers

TVP is appealing for information following the theft of registration plates from a red, Nissan Almera on Duns Tew Road in Hempton on Saturday afternoon, 17th August. If you saw anything or have any information relating to this case, please call 101 quoting reference 43190254507.

The tragic death of PC Andrew Harper

Staff at TVP have been very moved by the many messages of condolence received since the tragic death of PC Andrew Harper, and would like to express their thanks. At the right time, they will pass these on to his family.

If you would like to send a message, please email PCAndrewHarperCondolences@thamesvalley.pnn.police.uk.

The Church MATTERS

Leader of the Band

I started listening to big band jazz when I was a kid. By the time I went university, I had a very respectable record collection (and I do mean records!). I still have some of those early buys ... One of my earliest acquisitions was an LP by the Count Basie Orchestra. We were on holiday in the summer of 1980, and I spotted a (then) recent recording from the 1977 Montreux Jazz Festival. It's not their greatest recording (not even as a 'live' concert recording) but it retains a special place for me (amongst the many other recordings I own) for all sorts of nostalgic reasons.

Last month, for the first time, I finally made it to a 'live' gig of the Count Basie band. Basie himself died in 1984, but his band lives on. In August they played a few shows at Ronnie Scott's club in London. Those of you who have been to Ronnie's know how small a space it is, how tightly the crowd is spaced around tables and how close to the stage people feel. When a full big band thunders through its high-octane jazz just inches from the punters, it is overpowering!

In the crowd were people of all ages, all sorts of backgrounds and races, some musicians I recognised, an academic I chatted to, as well as couples on dates, people alone just there for the band, those who knew every note the band were going to play, and those for whom the whole thing was a terrific and mysterious initiation into a completely new world. All of us stomping and cheering and demanding more from these phenomenal musicians giving their all.

The writer of the epistle to the Hebrews in the New Testament pictures being a Christian as being like a member of the Count Basie band. The guys in the band now are not the guys who used to be in it; no-one on that 1977 recording still plays. But it's somehow the same band it always was. They make the same music in a way that no-one else does. And all around are (in the words of Hebrews) a "great cloud of witnesses", a cheering crowd, who know what we are feeling, who understand us or know us or love us or are simply drawn in to see and listen and be with and support us.

Often in life we picture ourselves as the crowd - cheering others on. We watch sport, music, theatre, and we know the dispassionate pleasure of playing second fiddle to those who are doing the work, scoring the goals, taking the curtain calls. But the Bible says - oh no. You and I are the stars of the show. And yet those who have gone before us (not gone, just gone before) remain to cheer us on. They may not know us personally. They may not feel exactly what we are feeling. Our lives and their may not be a perfect match. Yet they crowd in, tightly packed, inches away, as our lives thunder on. There for us -

And they point to Jesus. Our great band leader. (The word the writer to the Hebrews actually uses is 'author', but 'band leader' is close enough.) And as we accept their encouragement, their cheers, their company, and follow their eyes to see the one who leads us all, there may be moments when we take a solo, but in this scene we never play alone. We belong to an amazingly disparate band of folk with stunningly different talents, yet together all the noises of life blend and harmonies and rhythms join to create a more glorious music than we ever knew we could play. That Count Basie gig was stunning. But life in God's family is even more amazing, and open to all.
